On the start page you will find five already created Test Habits. For these Test Habits also Done data has been created automatically.

Three buttons are displayed for each habit. With these buttons the info page and the edit page can be called. The third button deletes the Habit after a query whether one really wants to do this.

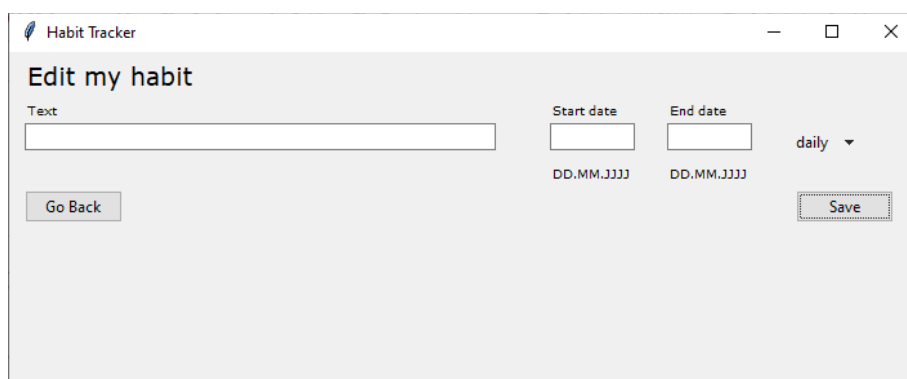

The selection field "All" can be used to filter by the time periods. The selection "All" resets the filter.

The current status of the task is displayed in the done column. By checking the checkbox, you complete the current task. If the start date is in the future, or the end date is in the past, the checkbox is disabled.

In addition, the date by which the task must be completed is displayed. If the task is not completed by the displayed date, the program evaluates this period as unfinished.

With the button "New" a new habit can be created.

These pages are exact copies of each other, so we treat them together here. On this page new Habits can be created, a text field and two date fields are available for entries. The time period can be selected via the selection field. The default is "daily".

If you call this page via the edit button, the values of the selected habit are displayed in the fields. These can be changed, also the period can be selected again. Afterwards you can save the changes by clicking the Save button. Afterwards you will immediately be taken back to the start page. The

Go Back button takes you back to the start page without making any changes.

Info Page

A screenshot of a web application window titled "Habit Tracker". The window has a light gray background and a title bar with standard minimize, maximize, and close buttons. The main content area is titled "Habit information" in bold. Below this title, there are several lines of text: "Name: Do something with daughter", "Creation date: 04.04.2023 at 12:27:38", "Start date: 03.02.2023", "End date: 02.08.2023", and "Longest series: You were successful without any gaps from 10.02.2023 to 16.02.2023. After all, that's a whole week. From 31.03.2023 to 06.04.2023 you didn't make it. After all, that's a whole week." At the bottom left of the content area, there is a button labeled "Go back".
